// ABOUT ME

I have over two years experience in Full stack software development. I am a very intuitive thinker which makes me excellent at critical analysis and problem solving. Currently I work as a product developer with Genesys Tech Hub, where I was retained after completing a 6month internship on backend development; this has enabled me to get use to the agile development methodology of software development. I have also imbibed great collaborative skills by working with teams (physically or remotely).
This has made me a seasoned software developer with the required emotional intelligence and technical know how to work with any software team or on any project.
